An International player is defined as one who is not classified as a National player.

7 6-Game Injured List (unlimited)

Salaries of players on the 6-game Injured List while on the list do not count against the salary cap. Teams have the opportunity to remove 2 players during the season from the 6-game Injured List before 6 games on the list is reached. A player removed from the list early has his full salary during his time on the list count against the salary cap.

B Count Against Salary Cap

4 Designated Internationals (max 4)

Designated Imports are a subset designation of the Imports dressed. A designated import may only enter the game to replace another import player (for one or more plays). If a designated import is to enter the game, replacing a player not on the field, the replaced player shall not be allowed to return to the game. When a team dresses 20 International players, 4 players shall be Designated Internationals. When a team dresses 19 International players, 3 players shall be Designated Internationals. When a team dresses 18 International players, 2 players shall be Designated Internationals.

8 Practice Roster (max 10)

Practice roster sizes are set at 10 players, consisting of a minimum of 2 National players and a maximum of 8 International players. A minimum of 1 National player is required, and if the practice roster consists of 7 players, a minimum of 2 National players are required. These salaries count against the salary cap. The salary negotiated for such an agreement may be equivalent to the previous Standard Player Contract salary negotiated. If a Practice Agreement provides compensation equivalent to the minimum salary, the player shall be entitled to all the benefits of a player with a Standard Player Contract except post-season compensation.

C Practice Agreement

In order to practice with a club, a valid Practice Agreement is required. Practice Agreement players may sign a Standard Player Contract with another club provided they are placed on that club's 46-man Roster prior to the team's next game.
