

Coaches To Expert Royalites

Are They Good Or Can We Beat 'Em? Football Question

When New Westminster and Victoria meet in their second game of total-points-to-count tonight at Athletic Park at 8 o'clock Vancouver coaches and managers will be able to see just how much they should worry about this alleged importation of players.

Comment has been caused by New Westminster regarding American football players they have brought in. The coaches say they won't stand for this, chiefly because they are a bit afraid they might be beaten by the Royal dark horses.

Although New Westminster was cleared by B. C. officials some local bosses want further investigation to see if these fellows come within registration rules.

Of course if the Royals don't shape up so well it will all be dropped!

So far both Victoria and the Queen's city teams threaten to have something to contend with. Victoria has strengthened since it's first encounter with the Royals and the latter team claim they are stronger as a result of extra practise.

So it will be with interesting eyes that local grid men watch these two visiting teams tonight. And if they look too good you may hear some more about these players from the other side.
