BRADDOCK'S INJURY SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Boxing Commission Told Champion
Can't Train For Two Months,
However

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The New York State Athletic commission heard Tuesday that Jimmy Braddock's injured hand was showing satisfactory improvement.

The injury led to postponement of his heavyweight title match with Max Schmeling.

Dr. Fred Albee at Venice, Fla., reported Braddock improving but said it would be inadvisable for him to resume training for at least two months.

Great Comebacks By Star Athletes

Business Couldn't Keep Lloyd
Waner or Alice Marble
Down

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Little Lloyd Waner's comeback this season with the Pittsburgh Pirates is another story of the triumph of courage over adversity.

The smaller and younger of the twin sons was on the shelf all last year, seriously ill with pneumonia. Dangerous lung complications developed, and for a while doctors feared for the frail little fellow's life. Peewee has a heart bigger than his slight frame, however, and he has not only fought his way back to health, but is again working in the Pirate outfield as brightly as ever, though last year it was said he would never play baseball again.

A somewhat similar saga is the tragic tale of Miss Alice Marble's return. The blonde coast star was buckled down in 1934 by an attack of pleurisy while she was campaigning in Europe with the Wightman team. Out of competition for two years because of this serious illness, Alice was not even considered for the Wightman team this year, though she protested that she had fully recovered. Determined to prove that she was as good as ever, Miss Marble returned to action in eastern tournaments, and scored some notable wins, and capped her comeback last week by defeating Helen Jacobs for the U.S. title.

Edmonton Hi-Grads will make their first 1936 invasion of the southern Alberta rugby pastures on Saturday when they come to grips with the Calgary Bronks "B" squad in Calgary. This will be the first game of the season for an Edmonton team in the Alberta rugby union schedule.

Although their opponents have had a number of engagements under their belts during the past few weeks, Hi-Grads are not the least bit perturbed as the team has undergone some heavy training of late and is reported to be ready for action. Coach Dick Speer is confident that his henchmen will be able to saddle the Junior Bronks' machine if they are given a fair share of the breaks.

Besides Coach Speer and his associates, Bud Williamson and Bricks Peebles, and a number of officials of the Alberta Rugby Union from this city, the team will be selected from the following players:

Possible Players

Ed. Chown and Ernie Stevens, quarterbacks; Doug Foster, Martin Graham, Charlie Devenay, Rusty Wynn, Roy Gerlitz, Frank Root and Harold Sutton, halves; Archie Ritchie and Bob Karran, snaps; Ken Shaw, Bob Golden, Paul Brockie, Don McGreevey, Bert Tonsi, Harry Robertson, Allan McDonald, Lorne Harney, Lloyd Wilson and Jack Hamilton, linemen; and Red Caldwell, Harry Pardee, Ted Heath and Ab Macdonald, ends. Thirty persons are expected to make the journey to Calgary.

Kicking duties will be handled by Roy Gerlitz and Ted Heath in this game, as both have been booting the pigskin with good results of late. Bud Williamson will in all probability be in uniform in the south and take a position in the Hi-Grads' backfield during the encounter.

Fair Backfield

Stevens, Graham, Devenay, Wynn and Gerlitz are certain starters in the backfield, and the following members of the team should see plenty of action on Saturday against the southerners: Ritchie, Karran, Shaw, Brockie, McGreevey, Tonsi, Robertson, Heath and Pardee. Chown, Root, Sutton, Golden, McDonald, Harney, Wilson, Hamilton and Ab McDonald are newcomers to the squad this year.
