

Gridders Will Take To Air

Circus Promised at Athletic Park When Lions, 'Lomas
Meet Tomorrow

Should be an air circus at Athletic Park tomorrow afternoon, starting at 2:45.

Air should be filled with forward passes and snappy kicks when Meralomas, hustling for the league leadership, meet North Shore Lions.

Meralomas on percentage are half a game behind V.A.C. in the standings and a win tomorrow will tie up the loop. But North Shore is funny that way; they always have a burning desire to win themselves, no matter for what position, and they particularly like to beat the Lomas.

SMART DUO

Tomorrow they think they can do just that after a nice long rest and plenty of time to practise one of the best plays in the league, if not the best —Bullock to Smith, forward pass.

In their last game, Bullock showed he is by far the best passer in the league. He has speed and accuracy, but, most important, he can lead the receiver into an unprotected zone away from defenders.

However, Meralomas have a pretty fair pass combination, too, in Ross and Ferris. These two have completed three this year for touchdowns. They seem to know how to click in the clinches.

Meralomas discovered themselves in their last game when they beat V.A.C.
They showed a charging line, hustling attack that put the Red Hats off stride.

BULLOCK QUARTER

Coch Don Greenwood points out that his Shore team is different than the V.A.C. Due to deceptive plays and fakes, they do not need to get their plays away quickly, so charging isn't so effective.

Greenwood has made a smart move in his backfield. Bullock has been moved to quarterback and Curly Hayes, the rip-snorting fellow, put in the half line, where he will have a chance to do some ball carrying.

Bullock has orders to call for passes any time he thinks there is a hole for one.

Meralomas will present about the same team as last game except for a couple of additions to the bench brigade; North Shore have lost the two Downies, but feel they can take care of that with ease.

Per usual, there will be a band out to keep the fans' toes jiggling, and Meralomas will be out in force to cheer their team on to league leadership.
